

From running with the infamous Calton Tongs to running Calton Athletic, David Bryces life story is a remarkable account of crime, violence, alcoholism and drug addiction in Glasgows gangland. A respected hard man, Bryce worked his way through most of HMs prisons in Scotland before an epiphany in 1977 made him realise that he was a hopeless alcoholic who needed help. A five-year battle followed, during which he sank into the abyss of heroin addiction before finally getting clean. In 1985, in an effort to help others who were struggling against substance abuse, Bryce set up Calton Athletic, a football team and social group made up solely of recovering drug addicts. Reformed gangster Jimmy Boyle was one of the first to have faith in Bryce and Calton Athletic, but the club eventually won widespread respect. Gordon Brown, then a young MP, was so impressed that he wrote an article for The Observer which led to a TV film starring Lenny Henry and Robbie Coltrane. In the 90s, Ewan McGregor, Irvine Welsh and the Trainspotting crew sought Bryces advice and friendship during the making of the internationally acclaimed cult film, while Robbie Williams begged to switch nationality and play for Calton Athletic in an England v. Scotland celebrity charity match. Bryces uncompromising belief that the only way to come off drugs is to go cold turkey and stay completely clean saw him clash with government agencies over the harm-reduction policy of recent years. The clubs statutory funding was withdrawn in 1998, but today Calton Athletic are still providing an invaluable lifeline while the official drugs policy has become increasingly discredited. Alive and Kicking is an inspirational tale of survival and success against the odds.
