

This book documents the authors bicycle trip across America, starting at his home in Los Angeles, CA, and ending at his family's home in the suburbs of Washington, DC. The ride was a most wonderful experience that the author has been dreaming about doing for a number of years. This book is an attempt to share the joys as well as the realism of the experience with others around the world. During the ride, the author experienced a very interesting and most delightful slice of American culture. The book documents the journey, the people, the scenes, as well as various aspects of the ride itself. It is intended to be of interest not just to cyclists (or wanna be cyclists), but to anyone interested in experiencing a sincere and complete account of the journey through this great country, the United States of America. There is sufficient practical information about the ride to hopefully encourage readers to experience the joys of bicycling for commuting/transportation, and/or for tourism and recreation. It is the authors sincere hope that readers will be inspired to begin bicycling if they are not yet doing it, or to do more cycling. Bicycling is fun, good for the environment, and improves the health of people who do it.
