

Josef Skvorecky left Czechoslovakia in the wake of the 1968 invasion, and settled in Canada. In the course of the next twenty years, he wrote many novels, and gradually developed a reputation as one of Canadas finest novelists. In 1985 he received the Governor Generals Award for Fiction. Prague Blues is Sam Soleckis study of Skvoreckys fiction. Book by book, Solecki investigates the elements of Skvoreckys work, establishing a framework for future critical work.
